School secretary pleas 'no contest' to embezzling $22,000

■ 90-day stay in local jail, restitution and probation expected to be ordered in September

By Steve Marschke

A former secretary at the Holy Cross School in West Sacramento pleaded "no contest" on Monday to felony charges of embezzling $21,952.60 from the school.

Jody L. Adcock, 35, is expected to be sentenced to a combination of local jail time, probation and a requirement to make restitution as part of the plea bargain, said Deputy District Attorney Patricia Fong.

The plea came at the first day of trial for Adcock in the Yolo County Superior Court of Judge Donna Petre.

Adcock's attorney could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

Fong said that a guarantee of no state prison time was part of the plea bargain, and that the embezzlement is believed to have occurred between October of 1992 and March of 1994.

"She received cash payments for tuition from the school's parents," said Fong. "She wouldn't give out receipts unless the parent absolutely insisted."

Fong added that payments as low as about $75 to as high as $2,000 disappeared this way. Felony embezzlement of this type is punishable by up to three years in state prison and a $27,000 fine.

A spokesperson for the school, who asked not to be named, said she was "angry" that the sentence wasn't harsh enough.

"I don't think we'll ever see the restitution," she added.

The private Catholic school is located on Anna St. in West Sacramento's "Bryte" (northwestern) neighborhood.

'Goodbye party' for local crime

JOE FICARELLI serves up the cupcakes with neighbors from Lilac St. Tuesday evening at a "Neighborhood Night Out" Party

■ Temperatures are hot, neighborhood spirit is warm at second annual block parties organized to fight crime

By Steve Marschke

The "Night Out Against Crime" seemed headed for success early last evening, as residents of at least 14 West Sacramento neighborhoods gathered in front of their houses to share refreshments, play games and get to know one another.

It was the city's second year of participation in the annual, nation-wide event, which is sponsored by law enforcement groups and others. The goal is to try to get neighbors to spend one night every year "locking their doors, turning on their porch lights, and going outside to meet each other."

By learning "who is supposed to be in the neighborhood and who isn't," said participant Joe Ficarelli, neighbors can go back to looking out for each other "the way things used to be."

Ficarelli, a Lilac St. resident, is active in the city's Neighborhood Watch program and helped organize the "Night Out" party on Lilac St.

At 6:00 o'clock last night -- still early in the festivities -- about 20 people had gathered on the lawns and sidewalks of one part of the roped-off street, cheerfully readying themselves for a barbecue and some cold sodas. More people were trickling steady in.

"We've got a good, 95 percent participation from the neighbors here," said Ficarelli. "This is one of the better blocks because everyone wants to be involved -- it's not just one or two people doing everything."

Richard and Donna Williams were nearby starting up a gas barbecue loaned by Raley's -- which employs Richard. Raley's also donated hot dogs for the event, said Donna, and the Rainbo bakery supplied buns for the Lilac block party.

Elsewhere around town, neighbors set up similar refreshments and prepared for goodwill visits from the police, city leaders, and from the parks department mascot "Jack Rec" and "McGruff the Crime Dog."

Ficarelli said community involvement makes a large difference in fighting local crime.

"We go around to the different neighborhoods showing how we organized our neighborhoods, how we got the drug houses out of here, and we show them how easy it is to work with the police department," he explained. "You can really see the difference and feel the difference here. We have a lot less traffic, and there are no cars pulling up in front of houses for five minutes (dealing drugs)."

He suggested that people interested in finding out how to participate in year-round neighborhood watch programs call Lisa Cox of the West Sacramento Police Department at 372-2461.

Planned new bridge will offer limited options for turning

By David Weller

Traffic flow decisions have been made about the new Palamidessi Bridge which will move traffic using the bridge from Southport in a westward direction.

"If you choose to access the freeway (from the bridge), you will have to come around on Industrial and up to Harbor," said Mayor Greg Potnick.

In response to public demand to keep Park and Stone boulevards from becoming major traffic corridors, the city council several months ago decided that the only access from Stone to Industrial Blvd would be emergency access. Currently Stone and Industrial meet as one continuous street near the site of the future bridge. "The public was adamant about that. They did not want to turn Park into a major thoroughfare," said Mayor Greg Potnick.

According to the design, which is now 85 percent complete, northbound traffic across the bridge will veer to the left on Industrial Blvd.

The southbound approach will have a hard right turn onto the bridge. Several hundred yards into Southport, the road will split. A shallow left curve will lead east to Jefferson Blvd, and a right turn will lead west to service the planned industrial development and the new residential developments in the southwest.

Port development:

'Seaway' to be discussed

By David Weller

The Planning Commission will hold a public hearing to consider a tentative map and a development agreement for Seaway International Trade Center, a planned development of the Port of Sacramento, tomorrow night.

The port development is planned for the 500 acres of port property between the proposed Southport Industrial Park and the Arlington Oaks neighborhood.

The subdivision map includes 275 acres for water related industries, 98 acres for a business park, 21 acres for light industrial uses, 40 acres for parks and recreation facilities, and 72 acres for open space.

As recently as one week ago, Port Manager John Sulpizio said that he is not satisfied with the agreement or the map in the form it will take before the commission on Thursday.

One of the issues still to be resolved is a question of how right of way will be granted by the port to the city for access to the Palamidessi Bridge on Industrial Blvd.

Riverside lands 75-100 person office building

Human resource agency plans to move in to new building in 1997

By David Weller

Co-operative Personnel Services (CPS), a public agency currently located in North Sacramento has purchased a lot and plans to construct an office building at Riverside Center near Reed Avenue and Riverside Parkway in the north area of West Sacramento..

The company will probably move to West Sacramento from its current location near the Raddison Inn at Arden Way and Highway 160 by October 1997.

CPS is a self-supported public agency that provides human resource services to public and non-profit agencies. The services it offers include personnel policy research, executive searches, developing professional examinations, administering tests.

Currently the company employs 75 people, but it plans to build for 100 to account for future growth.

"After shopping the area, it was the most desirable location," said company spokesman Jerry Greenwell. He named the proximity to Sacramento and the airport, and the price in comparison to locations to the northeast of Sacramento as factors that made the West Sacramento site particularly attractive.

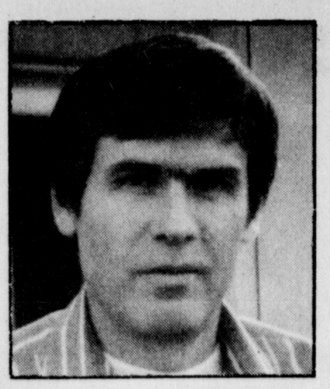
CPS plans to begin working on the design by late fall. It hopes to begin construction by fall of 1996, and be moved in by 1997, when its current lease runs out.

According to Greenwell, the plans are not set in stone, however. The company may build one small building initially with plans to build another on the same site as the company grows, or it could build for more than it needs and lease the extra space until CPS needs it. A very rough estimate places the size of the building somewhere between 32,000 and 40,000 acres.

The time-line is also an estimate and not firmly established. "We have some flexibility, we don't necessarily have to be out of our current location when the lease expires," Greenwell said.

How a woman looks at her body -- and how a man sees it

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

The older I get (and I'm fast approaching senility), the more I realize just how dense I can be when it comes to understanding the opposite sex. But I do think I may have recently stumbled across a tiny little truth which men everywhere need to immediately pass along to their male offspring.

"What are you pontificating about now?" asked a long-time friend of mine who is usually even more confused about how the female mind works than I am.

"I'm serious," I said to him. "Women all over the place are suffering from this poor body image thing, and I'm convinced that it's at the heart of a lot of their weird behavior."

"I'm afraid you're going to have to be a little bit more specific," said my friend, yawning.

"Women think about bodies -- especially their own -- in one way," I explained, "and they just assume guys also think that way, too -- and they're totally wrong."

"How so?"

"Okay," I said, warming to the topic, "for example, say you're strolling down a street and you suddenly see a woman you're really attracted to - what is the very first thing you notice about her?"

"Well," said my friend with a smile, "I guess that would depend."

"On what?"

"On if my wife was strolling along with me."

"You're all by yourself," I assured my friend.

"Okay, well, in that case, if she had sexy legs, I guess I'd probably notice them first. But if she had great hair or a nice rear end, I might look at that, too. It's kinda hard to say. It would depend on what stands out the most."

"Exactly," I said. "That's the way all guys do it. We see one thing that really attracts us and we focus all our attention on that one feature. It can be anything from sparkling eyes to great feet, but because we're all kind of slow witted, we're really only capable of concentrating on one or two things at any given time."

"And your point is?"

"My point is that when women look at their bodies in a mirror, they absolutely insist on seeing the total package, and if any one little area is all screwed up, they hate their whole body, which inevitably puts them in a bad mood, and guys everywhere are suffering because of it. Women just don't understand that they don't have to be perfect to be attractive. Guys just need to find one nice body part that's pretty or interesting, and then they're perfectly happy, and every woman has at least one of those."

"And you really think this is an earth-shattering insight, do you?" asked my friend.

"Of course it is," I said. "It directly affects everything from mood swings to the national divorce rate?"

"The divorce rate?"

"That's right," I continued. "I firmly believe that one of the main reasons so many women want to stay married forever is because their body image is so bad they prefer boredom and indifference to the terror of letting another man look at them without their clothes on."

When my friend stopped laughing, he said, "And just when did you first stumble across all this?"

"Well, I guess I've known that men and women think differently about their bodies ever since the third or fourth year of my marriage when my wife suddenly blurted out, `I want to really thank you for never having said a single thing about my nose'. `What's wrong with your nose?' I asked her. `It's too big for my face,' she said. `It's not as big as mine,' I assured her. `That's not the point,' she said, shaking her head. Anyway, when I told her I had never given her nose much thought in all the years I had known her and that it looked just fine to me, she was sure I was lying to her.

"So, you think women are wasting a lot of their time trying to come up with the perfect body when in reality, most men would never get around to appreciating all of it anyway?"

"Exactly! And they're making themselves miserable in the process. Here, I'll give you another example of how clueless guys are when it comes to this stuff. I was talking to an otherwise very rational friend a few weeks ago when she suddenly said, `Now stop that!'. `Stop what?' I asked her, wondering what I had done wrong. `Stop staring at my pimple!', she ordered me. `What pimple?' I asked, totally unaware that one even existed. `The one on my chin,' she informed me, pointing to a barely noticeable blemish.

"Then what did you do?" asked my friend.

"I did what I always do when I don't know what in the world a woman is talking about -- I apologized."

Later that evening, as I was going over my thoughts for this column, I recalled what another friend of mine had said when I mentioned my 'poor body image' theory to her a few months ago. She explained to me that when men and women over the age of 30 or so stand in front of a full length mirror, the experience is totally different.

"How so?" I had asked her.

"Women remember with deep sadness, and in great detail, how wonderfully firm and flat everything used to be, while you guys just suck in those fat guts of yours, smile, give yourselves the thumbs-up sign and say, `Hey, man, looking good!'"

4 to 1 victory:

Boys' tennis beats Laguna Creek

From the West Sacramento Junior Tennis Team

Last Friday, the West Sacramento Boys 18-and-under Tennis Team travelled down I-5 to Elk Grove to take on the team from the Laguna Creek Racquet Club and the locals came away with an impressive four-to-one victory. In the last regular season USTA Junior Team Tennis summer league match, the West Sac team may have extended their summer season into the playoffs. Coach Dave Brooks expects to hear this week if his team has qualified. "We knew going in that a loss and we were out, and a win gave us a shot at the playoffs," said Brooks. "It was `do or die' at their place and we're still breathing."

Ty Fisher led the way at #1 singles with a 6-1, 6-1 triumph that impressed his teammates, his hosts, and his coach. "Ty is in the middle of a stretch of the best tennis of his life right now," offered Brooks. "He has reached the final of an 18-and-under tournament at Rio Del Oro, won the consolation bracket of another at Rollingwood, and played some tremendous tennis at tournaments in Sacramento and down in Lodi, all within the last three weeks. He has come a long, long way since he first showed up in the West Sac Parks Department summer lessons as a scrawny eighth-grader in June of 1992. He absolutely dominated Laguna's #1."

At #2 singles, Oleg Loskutoff shook off a first set loss and rebounded to post a 3-6, 7-6, 6-1 win, then looked on as teammate Peter Santizo duplicated his three-set victory with a 6-2, 3-6, 7-5 win of his own at #4 singles. The fourth West Sac win of the afternoon came when Laguna Creek had to default the doubles match to Robert Deshields and Kevin Lim, while the lone loss was suffered by Ahmad Fazel at #3 singles, 0-6, 6-4, 5-7.

Whether or not his team makes the post-season, the summer league experience has been a successful one according to Brooks. "This was a great win for the guys. We beat Rio Del Oro earlier in the month, but that was a 3-2 on-court loss that was later reversed when it was discovered that they had used an ineligible player. This win is much sweeter because we got the job done on their home courts. Fisher led the way, Oleg and Pete came through in the clutch, and Fazel could have collapsed after that first set, but played his opponent 11-11 the rest of the way instead. Now we'll keep practicing and wait for the word on the playoffs."

Meanwhile, the West Sac Girls 18-and-under team also played at Laguna Creek last week, earning a 2-2 tie. The wins came at #2 and #4 singles from Chanthaphone Inthirath and Hoang Truong, respectively. Inthirath's was a difficult two-hour 7-6, 6-7, 6-1 win, while Truong cruised 6-1, 6-2. Like the boys team, the girls will now await word on their playoff fate.

Local boys basketball team plays in Florin summer league

By Jamie King
Head Junior Varsity Coach
RCHS Summer Basketball

To most high school students, the days of summer mean swimming pools and vacations. However, there are a group of guys who have sacrificed their tan lines for jump shots. The River City High School Boys Basketball Team has been participating in a summer league at Florin High School for the past month. The Raiders played two nights a week in a league that consisted of two separate divisions. River City finished fifth in their division, with a 4-3 record. The wins came over Rio Americano, El Dorado, Christian Brothers and Del Campo. Their three defeats came at the hands of Woodland, Laguna Creek, and Florin.

Although this was the best record a River City had posted in this league, the real excitement was to come in the playoffs. With a fifth place finish, the Raiders would have to play the fourth place team of the opposite division. Their first round opponent would be Jesuit. The Raiders came out aggressive toward the area powerhouse Marauders, and held off a late comeback for a 43-42 victory. In the quarterfinals, the Raiders were matched against a quick and athletic Kennedy team. The team used a full-court trapping defense to come away with a 36-33 win. With these two surprising victories, it was on to the semifinals against host Florin Panthers. With a balanced attack from the three-point line and inside the paint, the Raiders continued their tradition of close games with a 63-62 victory.

After a tremendous run in the playoffs, the championship game was in place. The Raiders would be facing 1994-1995 section champions, the Elk Grove Thundering Herd. Despite a

Looks like the Giants (39-48) are throwing in the towel for the season. The deadline for trading has come and gone and the Giants, who are 9 1/2 games out of first place, didn't add any starting pitching to their staff. Meanwhile the Rockies and Dodgers traded for solid pitchers for the stretch drive.

The Dodgers added two pitchers and the Rockies traded for two-time Cy Young Award winner Bret Saberhagen and acquired Bryan Hickerson from the Cubs.

The A's (41-48) fell apart in July and are 14 games behind the Angels. Trading Ruben Sierra to the Yankees for Danny Tartabull isn't going to help when you need pitching.

The 49ers play the Denver Broncos on Sat., Aug. 5, in Tokyo, Japan.

The Raiders play the Dallas Cowboys in Dallas on Sat., Aug. 5, at 6 p.m. The Raiders will be featuring a new coaching staff with a new approach in their offense.

The Sacramento Knights (9-1) lost their first game of the season in Anaheim. They return home in first place to play on Thursday, Aug. 3, against Dallas. Game time is 7:05 p.m.

See ya next week!!

Can the building moratorium safely be lifted?

There is a moratorium in place delaying development of Southport -- West Sacramento's largely undeveloped southern half -- until the planned new bridge is built. That's a good policy.

But the irony is that after the bridge is built, most of the same safety concerns that prompted the building moratorium will still be in place. There will be little reason, besides earlier plans and promises, to lift this moratorium and allow large quantities of new residential development.

Around five years ago, the city took a wrong turn. Through city council leadership and the lobbying of development interests, coupled with apathy by the public, West Sacramento put all its eggs in the wrong basket. It chose to believe that a new bridge would be built soon, paid for by private funds, which would relieve congestion on Jefferson Blvd. and its existing bridge.

Well, the "private funding," along with other campaign promises from that era, never materialized. The new bridge built "by next spring" didn't happen.

And the bridge design finally chosen for construction six years later is one that will be of little use to Southport residents. Only those heading north across the barge canal to go to Harbor Blvd., Davis or other points west will find it of use. The majority, who need to get to local supermarkets, Sacramento, or other points across the river, will rarely use it, since it would deposit them westbound on Industrial Blvd. (whether they like it or not), nowhere near the supermarkets or the Jefferson/US 50 interchange.

Although one former city councilman used to angrily protest when the planned new bridge was referred to as the "Industrial Bridge," that is exactly what it will be. The new span is designed to serve the futures of both Southport Industrial Park and the Port of Sacramento -- not the people who live nearby.

If a new bridge had been prioritized to serve residential developments, it would have been (and should have been) built elsewhere. The city should have pulled out all the stops to widen Jefferson Blvd. or build a South River Road crossing.

The problem now is that we are still waiting to improve Jefferson; it is unclear whether we have missed opportunities for an earlier state partnership to bring these improvements sooner.

When the industrial bridge is built, the Southport moratorium is scheduled to come off, and new homes (bringing new residents and new cars) will spring up in Southport. Most will crowd onto the Jefferson Blvd. corridor and its bridge crossing.

So that stretch of highway, which was actually the reason for the construction moratorium in the first place, will actually get worse.

With three fatal accidents on the corridor in less than a year -- resulting in seven deaths -- this is no laughing matter.

The city needs to take a hard second look at its building moratorium, at its plans to lift that moratorium, and at what can be done to allow the safe development of its southern half.

Bridge

Sounds like Southport Industrial Park owner Frank Ramos and fellow entrepreneur Marvin "Buzz" Oates are proposing a Mello-Roos bond district by combining their 675 acres and 100 of the Port (of Sacramento)'s 500 acres...the amount of the bond issuance is unclear, although it would seem to need "tens of millions of dollars," considering it would finance the Industrial (Blvd.) Bridge. Is that 80 percent federal funding for that bridge still available? If so, does this Ramos-Oates proposal refer to just the 20 percent "hard match" local entities were to come up with in order to qualify for the 80 percent federal grant funding? Has the 1994 upheaval in Congress caused a cancellation of that 80 percent funding? Or even if the 80 percent is still available, are other conditions -- including the perception that the project will take longer if the "other 20 percent" is raised the normal way, whatever that is -- causing a slower timetable?

So while this writer thought the Industrial Bridge planning and future consturction appeared to be going pretty much according to schedule, apparently it is not fast enough for the most aggressive land developers in our area. It is easy to understand and to appreciate the desire for an earlier completion for the big bridge. Not only does a faster completion of the big bridge open up Southport to earlier development, it also means:

1) More jobs sooner;

2) More improved property of local tax roles; hence, higher local revenues;

3) Earlier opportunity to improve/widen the two-lane slick lift bridge to/from our Southport area...another death in July from an accident on that bridge further attests to the need for minimal delay for another bridge across the Barge Canal; and

4) Faster profits for developers.

Better that Mr. Ramos make quicker profits this way than to have too many of his eggs in one basket such as the MacMillan-Bloedel paper recycling plant land, from which he was to have made something like a $3.5 million profit. (Many of us are still hopeful that the paper plant "won't make it," since it threatens to use so much water, cause so much river water problems potentially and 3.5 jobs per acre...common sense does not tell us why we even give a second thought to such a "hot potato.")

As for Port Manager John Sulpizio "not getting his $10 million to finish deepening the ship channel from 35 to 40 feet (and relocating the PG$E gas line)," maybe the Port should put up another 50 acres as collateral to complete its projects. But Mr. Sulpizio should be reminded that neither Sacramento nor West Sacramento believes port expansion/enlargement -- as presently operated -- is warranted as attested by the unwillingness of both sides to finance the channel deepening. And even with a deeper channel, would the cumulative local effects be positive? Would there be a market for that increased potential for "more of the same ol' stuff?" Very doubtful.

Better that the Port change with the times and instead of hoping we get more of what the Port of Stockton does not want or cannot handle, the Port's goals should be re-examined and the charter changed. Recreational boating should be a major factor. With the $17 million debt already strangling the Port, maybe the Port should be dissolved and the City of West Sacramento should take over. Would our Sacramento neighbors agree? If we could change the Port from a financial/social liability to a big plus, it would make sense.

Incidentally, such action would also mean ownership of City Hall by the city/citizens of West Sacramento...no more rent for City Hall.

Lost pets

An open letter to the person or persons who have my cat, "Spunky":

Sometime late Saturday night (July 1) or Sunday (July 2), you or your child came into contact with my beloved cat "Spunky," who had been accidentally locked out of my apartment as I was leaving on a two-day trip!

I had prepared several large bowls of food and two large bowls of water and changed her "box." I opened the patio door to leave some food outside for the "outdoor" cats I feed and Spunky must have slipped out behind me without my knowing it. If only I had noticed her mission, none of what has followed would have happened!

I have printed 75 blue reward posters, which are stapled on telephone poles and fences in a five-block radius of Pecan Court and Evergreen; printed and distributed several hundred door-to-door white reward flyers; have run ads in both the West Sacramento Press and News-Ledger; have spoken to the city council about the missing pet problem that seems to be epidemic here in West Sacramento (you may have seen me on the Cable TV broadcast of the meeting); I go to the three area animal shelters and SPCA's every three days as required by law; and cry when I see the number of pets who are facing death at the hands of the bureaucrats when their owners may be away on vacation and the person to whom they entrusted their pet may not know what they have to do to save it's life -- thus sentencing a beloved pet to die or be "sold" to someone else or, worse yet, sold to be used in a medical experiment! This has been a gut-wrenching experience for me and my friends, who have been helping me in my never-ending search for Spunky -- call home at 371-1225, 24 hours.

Spunky has been my constant companion since I rescued her as a very small kitten over five years ago. As I live alone, she is my "best friend" and the child I never had! She sleeps in the crook of my right elbow at night. She would carry on conversations to get my attention while I watched television or read. Now I am unable to get a good night's rest, no matter what time I go to bed! Can you imagine how you would feel if your child had been taken away by strangers and they kept her secretly locked-up so that she could not come home to you?

I need Spunky and she needs me -- she has a heart murmur and needs her medicine! Her fur is a medium share of gray with beige highlights and vertical broken black stripes; her belly is beige with black spots; she has a white chin and a slight kink approximately 2" from the tip of her tail; her front paws are declawed; her eyes are yellow/green in color and she normally answers to her name. If you think that the cat that you found at the start of July might by Spunky, please teach your child by example that taking or keeping someone else's pet, or belonging, is not a proper thing to do! It could save your child from a life of crime! I will be happy to reimburse you for the food I hope she has been receiving -- please call me soon so that Spunky can come home where she belongs! Call 371-1225, 24 hours a day. If I am gone, leave a message.

Blame the Democrats

It is beyond me why anyone would endure to write letters to the News-Ledger, harping on how wonderful the Democrats are and how rotten the Republicans are, when the Democrats have bankrupt the country over the last forty years under the so-called "Great Society" and war on poverty created by Lyndon Baines Johnson, and cohorts to where the people who will not work can live in luxury on the sweat of those who work ten or twelve hours a day to pay for the upkeep of people they don't even know? If this is called democracy, we don't need more of the status quo.

The writer castigates Governor Pete Wilson and the Regents of California University for voting to end affirmative action for enrollment and employment. The only thing affirmative action does is shift discrimination from one race to another and lower grades in doing so. When November roles around, I expect to see the majority of the people vote to end all discrimination, regardless of race, color or creed. A color-blind society is what we need in all 50 states. Let the best qualified excel, and not say, "Your great, great-grandfather enslaved my great, great-grandfather, so you are going to pay."

Even if the color-blind measures does not pass, there will be some judge who legislates from the bench, who will see that it is never enacted into law, as the judge did on Proposition 187 last year.

The Democrats are still reeling from the beating they endured last November and don't know how to cope with it after forty years in power.

It is akin to weaning a calf from the mother cow -- it cries for days because it's milk is taken from it. The writer in question states, "I don't understand why a black man would vote to end affirmative action." All people of color are not liberal Democrats, thank heavens. So, to the writer -- keep 'em coming, you make my day.

West Sacramento Insurance Benefits

There are many good reasons to live here in West Sacramento. Yet another benefit has come to West Sacramento residents and business owners through lowered insurance rates. Recently, the City attained preferential status in two insurance areas - fire and flood.

Fire Protection

The people who rate fire protection for the insurance industry, ISO (Insurance Services Office) have upgraded the City of West Sacramento from a 4 to a 2 rating. Three of the areas rated--pump capacity, ladder service, and telephone service--received perfect ratings. The ISO surveys the City's fire response capabilities. The last evaluation of the City was in 1983. This time around, Fire Administration actively prepared for the review in order to raise the rating. The rating can affect insurance premiums such as the fire protection in home owners' and commercial premiums, depending on the type of building construction, occupancy and other calculations. Because of this rating, insurance premiums issued or renewed after August 1, 1995 should decrease. There are only 30 cities classified with a rating of 2 in California. The rest have higher insurance requirements.

Flood Protection

In the area of flood insurance, the City has benefited by completion of the levee repair project that was jointly accomplished by the City and local reclamation districts over the last several years. Not only did the repairs enhance public safety, but West Sacramento was removed from the floodplain on Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) maps. West Sacramento is now considered safe from 100 year flood events. West Sacramento property is no longer required by lenders of federally insured funds to have flood insurance. Check with your insurance agent to determine whether flood insurance is required for your property.

Traditional quilt patterns, colors and textures displayed

By Betty Fairbairn Sokolich

The Arthur F. Turner Library has an annual exhibit hung in the meeting room which also serves as the only art gallery in West Sacramento. The Friends of the Library have been sponsoring the monthly exhibits for many years and have brought before the public a great variety of art work created by artists both local and regional; however, this is the first time that quilts have been the feature medium used by the creators.

Many years ago during the colonial times when materials were in short supply in the newly developing country, the settlers learned to utilize every thing used by them in every day life and were the forerunners of today's recyclers. Economic necessity demanded a creative approach to finding ways and means to "make-do and re-do." Out of this need evolved an art form, as the pioneers found that by cutting up material from a garment that had become worn in areas and piecing the bits together, a warm cover could be manufactured that was cozy on the bed during the harsh New England winters. The urge to beautify one's environment led the quilt-makers to create and devise patterns that became an art form. Many of the patterns have been handed down to the new generations to be used over and over. Creative people worked out their own designs to suit their own personalities.

In the last several years, a renaissance of quilt-making has occurred when people realized the beauty and aesthetic quality of many of the quilts. Now quilt classes are held and the library exhibit is the work of a class conducted by Elaine Skierka in Sacramento. Now the emphasis is upon the beauty of the finished product, and no longer are "recycled" materials usually used but a search is on to find the most attractive cotton prints available. One young lady was in ecstasy about the prints she had found in the Amish country of Illinois and another was happy with her purchase of material found in Oregon.

This year's class was busy creating seasonal quilts so the library is exhibiting twelve quilts to represent the twelve months of the year. Each quilt uses a symbol of the month; for instance, bunny rabbits for Easter, stars and stripes for Fourth of July, etc. The prints used are colorful and full of textural delight. To make a quilt requires a great deal of patience and accuracy. Rulers and squares are used to ensure an even repeated pattern. Nowadays, many of the quilts are machine stitched, but several on view are hand stitched, a time-consuming craft. The class of quilt-makers becomes a close-knit group who enjoy the time together for fellowship, and a chance to share life's experiences with each other.

"Heart's Afire" by Kathleen Wheeler; "Easter Parade" by Jo Ann Bryan; "For Kay's Eightieth" by Jean Sawitzky; "Summer Delight" by Arianne Lyons; "Freedom" by Roxanne Eyler; "My Independence" by Kathy Newton; "Field of Sunflowers" by Debbie Taylor; "Quilting Til the Cows Come Home" by Terri Lanning; "Spools" by Elaine Skierka; "Pumpkin Patch" by Kathleen Hart; "Autumn Whisper" by Sandy Lysinger; and "Starry Path Christmas Hold the Lame" by Joan Parker are the titles of the quilts, and will give you an idea of the diversity of the themes.

The exhibit will remain on view until August 31, so you have time to dash down to the library, located at 1212 Merkley Avenue in West Sacramento, and view the works of art and admire the detailed work involved in the making of these beautiful quilts.

Clarksburg library hosts 'The Wines of Clarksburg'

Local grapes contribute to wineries such as Bogle, Kenwood, Dry Creek

The Clarksburg Winegrowers Association presents "The Wines of Clarksburg," a tasting to be held on Sunday, September 17, from 2 to 5 p.m. The annual event, which benefits the Friends of the Clarksburg Library, will showcase wines made in part from grapes grown in Clarksburg. This year's featured wineries include Bogle Vineyards, Kenwood, Dry Creek, Concannon, Canandaigua, E&J Gallo, and Sebastiani and more. The wines will be accompanied by a lavish buffet of foods of the harvest. Live music and a silent art auctions by some of the region's best-known artists round out the day.

The funds raised at this tasting directly benefit the Clarksburg Branch of the Yolo County Library, where one-third of the library hours are funded by local community donations.

The tasting will be held in the garden of the historic Holland Land Company Headquarters in Clarksburg. Along with the wines, delicious food, music and art, ticket holders will receive a commemorative wineglass. Tickets are $20, and advance purchase is recommended.

For tickets and information, call the Friends of the Clarksburg Library at 454-5906 or 665-1740.

Regional chamber leaders discuss economy

Are we in a recession and headed for recovery or should we be prepared for one of the worst depressions in the history of our nation?

You can be sure that question will be asked of Chamber of Commerce executive directors from West Sacramento, Woodland, Davis, Winters, Yuba City/Sutter and Dixon, as they gather for a special meeting today on the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce radio show, "Kaleidoscope," between 12:05 and 1 p.m. on Radio KJAY, 1430 AM.

Tune in as radio show host Lane Shapiro digs for the answers from his six business leader guests. What do they believe will happen to the economy as a result of the closure of McClellan Air Force Base and the economy in general? Do they have ideas about solving the econimc woes it appears we might face in the very near future?

Organizations and individuals wishing to participate and discuss topics of local interest are encouraged to contact the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce. Included in the program is a local community calendar.

Next week on August 9, Al Neighorn, an Esparto resident and producer of N-TV from Esperanza Enterprises (a new television program covering West Yolo County on Cable Channel 11), will be the featured guest on "Kaleidoscope."

Sponsors of "Kaleidoscope" are Johnnie's Sidewalk Pizza and the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce. For more information about the show, or about becoming a guest on the show, or about the Chamber, call 371-7042.

Annual Farm-City banquet returning to Yolo

Farm and City will meet once again on Thursday, October 26, for the 28th Annual Farm-City Week Banquet at the Yolo County Fairgrounds, and tickets are on sale now, according to Lynnel Pollock and Dona Mast, co-chairs of this year's event.

Yolo County points with pride that the Farm-City Banquet is still the largest in California, according to Charles Rayl, chairman of the Agri-Business Committee of the Woodland Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber is the major sponsor of this county-wide event.

Pollock and Mast encourage people interested in attending to order their tickets early, as seating is limited to 700. Tickets will remain priced at $20 (tax and tip included), and can be ordered by calling the chamber office at 662-7327, or by calling Dona Mast at 787-3206.

The pre-banquet activities will commence at 5:30 p.m. in the Home Arts Building. Featured during cocktails and the reception will be over 20 exhibits that will challenge the participant's Farm-City I.Q. through guessing games. There is no additional charge to enter all of the games which result in numerous prizes for the winners. A prime rib dinner will be served in Waite Hall starting at 7:30 p.m.

Award presentations will be made to those individuals that have distinguished themselves within the last year by working to keep the Farm-City bond strong in Yolo County. "Presentations of the Agri-Business Person of 1995, the Outstanding Young Farmer of Yolo County, and the Future Farmer of America celebrate the accomplishments, and the promise, of these hard-working people to maintain that most important of relationships, the one between Farm and City," according to Pollock and Mast. In addition, winners of the Agri-Business committee's scholarship awards will be announced as will the Beverly and Regnar Paulsen Foundation scholarships.

The program is scheduled to conclude at 9:15 p.m. Joining the Agri-Business committee as co-sponsors of the event will be the Yolo County Farm Bureau and the A.M. Kiwanis Club.

It was claimed that while the child was waiting at West Side, a station on the Northern Electric line near the M-street bridge, for an early morning train, Lara attacked him.

The actions of the boy attracted the attention of the bridge tender on the bridge. Testimony at the trial was given mostly through an interpreter, as the parties in the case are Mexicans.

At a meeting of the Washington School Trustees Saturday afternoon, September 15th was set as the date for the opening of the school for the fall term. Hitherto the school has opened earlier in the month, but the later date was selected in order to give the children an opportunity to work in the hop fields, the tobacco fields and the seed gardens of this district.

ANOTHER RAILROAD TRACK WILL ACCOMMODATE TRAFFIC AT BEAN WAREHOUSE

In anticipation of a great harvest the Sacramento Valley Dock and Warehouse is installing another railroad track to accommodate much enlarged business during the coming bean harvest.

The new track runs parallel with the old one, but projects towards the river between which and the warehouse it will run when completed.

This has been found necessary by the management because loading and unloading cars on the same track have been found inconvenient.

Another conveyor is also being installed to accommodate the unloading of beans from barges and steamers on the river front.

The crop expected from the Sutter Basin and up-river points during the coming fall is expected to be of great proportion.

The full unit of the bean cleaner has been finished with the result that during the season a greatly added output can be handled by the Sacramento Valley Dock and Warehouse Company.

Superintendent J. N. Meyer has been extremely busy during the past two months looking after the preparations necessary for these additions. The conveyor now being installed by Contractor C. J. Guth is similar to that which has been in use since the warehouse was built and which has served a splendid purpose in handling beans, barley and rice expeditiously.

YOLO ROAD BONDS POPULAR INVESTMENT WITH CAPITALISTS

Woodland, July 24.—Supervisor M. H. Stitt, Chairman of the Yolo County Board, reports that within the past few days, and more than a month before the county has voted $1,000,000 bonds for the construction of 75 miles of permanent highway, bond houses and banking institutions of Chicago, New York and San Francisco are bidding for the purchase of the bonds.

This is due, he states, to the fact that Yolo County is extensively advertised in the eastern cities as the richest of the State's 58 counties in point of per capita wealth. Because of the rivalry, the Supervisors expect to place the bonds immediately and begin work on the new roads this year.

A drunken squaw has been the cause of the arrest of a Reno woman on a charge of "blind pigging."

In the woman's possession were found seven bottles of whiskey and three empty ones.

Didn't somebody say Nevada was dry?

RIVERBANK SCHOOL BONDS CARRIED EASILY

By a vote of 38 to 11 bonds in the amount of $4,500 were carried yesterday by the voters of the Riverbank School District.

Many men were prevented from voting through the fact that the polls were closed at 6 p. m., while they believed the polls would remain open till 7 p. m.

Returning from their work at 6 p. m. many of the property owners were ready to cast a ballot in favor of the bonds but were prevented by the closing of the polls.

It is safe to say that the vote would have been carried by four to one but for this coincidence.

As it is the bonds are safe and will be sold as soon as possible.

The purpose of bonding the school district was to add another room to the building and to install a water supply system throughout the entire structure both for personal use and as a preventative to fire.

The school trustees are H. C. Bell, Donna Freese and E. C. White.

Two years ago when the school was built it was estimated there would be room for all the children of the district for many years to come.

The necessity of another room after so short a lapse of time is proof of the rapid growth of this popular suburb.

At an open discussion of the question last Wednesday evening many parents believed that instead of one room, two or more should be added.

An effort is to be made to get the work done before next winter.

Nevada is about to license gambling since it has been found that revenue must be raised somehow since saloons have been put out of business.

It is a noted fact that where prohibition rules gambling increases.

Come on, you ladies of the W. C. T. U., and stop this hellishly designed proposal.

WASHINGTON WATER CO. HAS FRANCHISE TO OPERATE

Despite the report made ten days ago to the Fire Trustees of Washington by District Attorney McDonald that the washington Water Company had never been granted a franchise it has been ascertained that a franchise was granted the company on July 8, 1897, by the board of Supervisors of the county with G. Houx, chairman, and G. L. Duncan, County Clerk.

The franchise, it appears, does not compel the company to furnish water for fire fighting purposes but provides that a 15-pound pressure must be maintained to "supply water for the residents of the town for all purposes."

At the time the franchise was granted two requests were made—one by Todhunter and the other by the present company. Todhunter withdrew his request and the present company was granted its franchise.

The S. P. Pankost boat and fishery has decided not to enter suit against the company for its loss through fire on July 11th.

The Washington Fire Trustees will likely take steps to have the franchise amended through the Railroad Commission so that a supply of water will be available in case of fire.

A Portland girl is under arrest for smoking cigarettes in public.

Yet thousands of women smoke cigarettes in the privacy of hotel lobbies and tea parties and other such places.

Like the preacher, "Don't do as I do, but do as I tell you."

HOP PICKING WILL START MONDAY IN SEVERAL YARDS

Next Monday morning the hop picking season in Yolo County will open with several of the growers now ready to finish as soon as possible.

Hundreds of people have offered their services and a crowd of men, women and children will take their places in the yards Sunday evening or Monday morning.

Whole families will be camped along the river as far north as Elkhorn.

Casselman, Lehman, Lovdal, Burke and Merkley yards are ready and will start Monday. All these are close to Washington and may be easily reached by help through the county road running north or over the Sacramento Northern Railroad.

Supplies of groceries and other necessities will be on hand in most of the ranches, but when more is needed wagons will be run by the grocers of Washington.

Sanitary conditions will be maintained by the hop growers.

Vouchers bringing crime to West Sac?

By David Weller

West Sacramento police officers have encountered many people staying in West Capitol Avenue motels on vouchers given to them in Sacramento in recent months.

Police Chief Larry Gore confirmed Tuesday that there has been a significant increase in the numbers of people the police have to deal with who have been sent over on voucher systems being run out of Sacramento.

According to information police officers have gathered from people in town on vouchers, the vouchers are being distributed by Loaves and Fishes, and LIFE (Living In a Familiar Environment). Representatives from neither of those organizations returned the News Ledger's calls Tuesday afternoon.

The police learn of the increased numbers of homeless people in West Sacramento when they encounter them in criminal activity, according to Gore.

"We meet people with no reason for being in town other than the fact that have a voucher. We find them in criminal activity, disturbance situations, or panhandling. Sometimes we find people on one voucher sharing a room with several others."

"We don't think the citizens of West Sacramento deserve other people's problems," Gore said.

He also said that voucher systems that send people from a city in one county to a city in another create a burden for the receiving county. "They are sent to our community, establish residency, and become dependant on the county welfare system.

Currently police are still trying to find out basic information about the voucher systems, especially who is paying for the motel stays.

Before West Sacramento incorporated, the it was common practice for Sacramento County to deliberately send people to West Capitol motels with vouchers.

One of the priorities of the police department in first few years of incorporation was to get Sacramento County to stop the practice.

Bingo room considered for Riverbend center

By Steve Marschke

Local businessman Kip Engstrom is in the "early stages" of a proposal to bring a bingo parlor to West Sacramento's Riverbend Shopping Center on Sacramento Ave.

The bingo setup would benefit perhaps "15 to 20 charity groups" with games "six or seven nights per week," he said.

"I want to help seniors as a group because I am one," said Engstrom. "The fact that there isn't any profit in this idea for anyone but the charities is my motive."

Engstrom said that West Sacramento Police Chief Larry Gore and local seniors are now checking out a bingo facility on Florin Road to see whether a similar operation would suit them. With volunteer staff and proceeds to charities, the proposed local bingo room would comply with the city's gaming ordinance, but would also require a city permit.

"So far, I've not heard a negative comment from anybody," he said. "I've bounced this idea off of a lot of people."

Engstrom said he owns the two Riverbend Market sites he hopes to use for the center -- one for the bingo room and one for a related food service. He envisions a seniors group buying the properties and generating income from renting out the bingo room and selling food. A number of local charities could rent the bingo room as fundraisers.

State law mandates that the bingo room staff be volunteers.

"The goal is for (the local charities) not to have to depend any longer on spaghetti feeds and on city handouts to survive," he commented.

Engstrom said he was still several weeks away from a firm plan for the bingo facility, but that his project had little in common with an unsuccessful, private, for-profit "high-class cardroom" proposed for the city in 1992. That gaming room proposal failed nearly 3-1 at the hands of local voters.

Health clinic on Sacto Ave. hopes to begin methadone treatment

By Steve Marschke

West Sacramento planners will vote tomorrow on whether a new permit is required for new methadone treatment services at the John H. Jones Clinic at Riverbend Market, 950 Sacramento Avenue.

Methadone is used as one method of relieving the withdrawal symptoms of people trying to quit the use of heroin.

The non-profit clinic currently provides medical services and a majority of the patients receive drug treatment services.

Laura Hogan and Sherry Cauchois, executive directors of the CommuniCare Health Centers, which operates the clinic, estimated that 25-50 new clients would sign up for the program when it opens, and 25 "detox" slots will be provided. The clinic would also handle "maintenance" patients who have completed treatment. The estimate came in a letter to city officials.

"Methadone services are proposed for the John H. Jones Community Clinic in West Sacramento because clients already receive drug treatment services in this site," the pair also reported. "60 percent of those in drug treatment in Yolo County live in West Sacramento . . . (and in 1994) methadone services were provided to 199 Yolo County residents, with 120 of these clients residing in West Sacramento."

In order to discourage loitering by clients at the shopping center area, the clinic will provide indoor waiting areas and will be careful not to schedule more appointments than it can handle. Clinic personnel will also try to refer people from out of the area for treatment in their own county.

Clinic personnel cited a successful methadone clinic in Del Paso Heights (which at first drew community opposition) as an example of how the services will fit smoothly into their clinic operation.

Steve Patek, the city's planning director, will recommend to the planning commission that the clinic's proposed methadone treatment will not cause physical impacts on the building or site which could allow the commission to reject it.

Church says 'Thanks' for participation in Bible School

From First Baptist Church

The congregation of First Baptist Church, located at 15th and Delaware, would like to thank the West Sacramento community for its support of and participation in their fifth annual Vacation Bible School, which was held during the week of July 10.

The "Polar Expedition" was a great success, with an average daily attendance (children and staff) of 180! Thursday's high of 141 children (three years through eighth grade) broke the attendance record for any V.B.S. day in the past five years.

The children were either "Wacky Walruses" or "Pesky Penguins," and were treated each day to singing, recreation (including sled rides), contests, refreshments, stories, crafts, memory verses, prizes at the trading post, and a special visit from Big Jacques Shellac -- the biggest, strongest, smartest, fastest, most handsome French Canadian trapper in all of the arctic regions!

The end of the week was toped off with a special V.B.S. recognition service on Sunday morning at 11 a.m. (during the regular worship service of the church). Each child had the opportunity to demonstrate to their family what they had learned and been participating in throughout the week and they each received a special recognition award for their V.B.S. attendance.

A special prize was also given to the child that brought the most family visitors to the service that morning. After the service, everyone was treated to an all-you-can-eat barbecue of hamburgers, hot dogs, salads and desserts -- it was a great day. "Thank you" to everyone who was involved.

Live Oak buys land option in Southport near city limits

The Live Oak partnership has purchased an option to buy 216 acres in the "Hollenbeck Farms" area near the southern city limits of West Sacramento.

The seven-year option, signed in October, involves property zoned for development west of Jefferson Blvd. and near Jefferson Blvd. and the deep water shipping channel.

It does not involve property envisioned by city officials for a new city sewage plant now under study, said Stephen Patek, West Sacramento's community development director.

Live Oak previously pursued development of a golf course/residential development south of the city, to be annexed into West Sacramento, but that project has met roadblocks and is currently on hold.

Basketball from p. 3

courageous effort, the Raiders fell to what might be the best team in the area come the 1995-96 season. The Raiders came away proud, with a second place finish.

The following players participated in the league: Zerguy Maazouddin; Mark Munsinger; Senh Saelee; Don Goloway; Jaimes Timas; Bruce Sweeten; Anesh Singh; Andrew Odor; Will Welcher; and Ghamai Mashriqi. Head coach Jon West will now take his team for three days to Humboldt State University for a team competition camp. However, the Raiders will be without their sophomore center, Mark Munsinger. Mark has travelled to Arizona with a Sacramento team to participate in the Basketball Congress International Tournament. This is a tournament in which the top high school players in the nation are looked at by college scouts. Good luck to Mark and the rest of the River City Basketball Team throughout the summer and into the next season.

Basketball used to be considered a sport that was only played from November to February. However, the Raiders are on a mission to put themselves on the area basketball map.

Suicide prevention help needed

Crisis intervention for teens and adults in need

Suicide Prevention of Yolo County (SPYC) is recruiting community volunteers to serve on its 24-hour crisis lines. The two crisis lines provide telephone crisis intervention services to adults and teens in need. Suicide Prevention has been supported by community volunteers for the past 29 years, and continues to expand services as the community copes with shrinking resources.

As a result of community need and support, the ASK Line (Allied Services for Kids) was established last December. Crisis counselors work with homeless, runaway, and at-risk teens and their families. The counselors provide teens with emotional support, assistance with problem solving, exploration of safe alternatives, and linkage to professional services. The "Runaway Alternatives Program" (RAP) of Yolo Community Care Continuum and the "Teen Outreach Program" of Yolo Family Service Agency, provide free face-to-face counseling and crisis services to teens and families referred by ASK Line counselors.

This training and volunteer program provides an opportunity for the community to help others dealing with multiple issues, including depression, loneliness, grief, suicidiality, and interpersonal conflict. Individuals are being selected for this comprehensive 35-hour volunteer training. Please call SPYC at 372-0709 for more information.

SHARE aims to promote self-sufficiency

From SHARE of Northern California

This July, the West Sacramento Resource Center will be increasing its efforts to help people make moves towards self-sufficiency by hosting the SHARE (Self-Help and Resource Exchange) program. A nonprofit community development program, SHARE offers a $25-$30 package of meats, fresh produce, and other groceries in exchange for $14 in cash or food stamps and two hours of volunteering anywhere in the community. (Vegetarian packages are available).

In this time of government budget cuts, SHARE promotes self-sufficiency in several ways. Participants are asked to register at the beginning of the month by paying $14 in cash or food stamps, and often have to work this into their food budget. By volunteering two hours a month, participants also become responsible to others, to the children they are helping in the schools, the seniors they are visiting in senior centers, or to the many others that are helped by, SHARE participants each month. Interested people can call the center at 372-8980

History magazine available

From the Yolo County Historical Society

The quarterly periodical California History can now be found on the shelves of the Davis, West Sacramento and Woodland libraries, thanks to the Yolo County Historical Society.

The society itself has long been a subscriber to this quality magazine and wanted to share its contents with the public. They spoke to Yolo County librarians and found enthusiasm about adding this magazine to their libraries' collections. Since the arrival of the first issue, librarians are pleased with the publication. They tell us it is useful as a resource for future book orders, as well as a supplier of historical facts in an interesting manner to them and the public.
